Box IV TEXT OF THE ABSTRACT (Continuation of Item 5 of the first sheet)

NEW ABSTRACT

The technical features mentioned in the abstract do not include a reference sign between parentheses (PCT Rule 8.1(d)).

Various embodiments of the present invention are directed to a database with an extensible type system for at least one user-defined type that comprises information for describing its structure as well as information for describing inheritance relationship between itself and another user-defined type (either a subtype or a supertype/base type). For certain embodiment, the user-defined type is defined in something other than Sequential Query Language (SQL) statement such as, for example, a Common Language Runtime (CLR) statement, a statement in C, C++, and C# ("C-sharp"), and/or a visual basic statement. In any event, several embodiments are further directed to a system wherein the database is aware of the inheritance relationship between two user-defined types by an explicit registration of the user-defined types with said database (Figure 3).

V. 2. Citations and Explanations:

Claims 1- 3, 6-13, 16-23 and 26-30 lack an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over U.S Patent No. 5,864,862 issued to Kriens et al., ("hereinafter Kriens") and in view of U.S Patent No. 6,564,205 issued to Iwata et al., ("hereinafter Iwata").

As per claims 1 and 21, Kriens discloses, "a system comprising a database with an extensible type system for at least one user-defined type" (see col. 20, lines 52-56), wherein said at least one user-defined type comprises: "information for describing the structure of said at least one user-defined type" (see col. 15, lines 35-38). Kriens fails to explicitly disclose information for describing an inheritance relationship between itself (said at least one user-defined type) and a second user-defined type. However, Iwata discloses a sub-data type may be a user-defined type to designate a procedure regarding to specify relationships of inheritance between data type (see Iwata col. 7, lines 32-39). It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the combined teachings of Kriens and Iwata with information for describing an inheritance relationship between itself (said at least one user-defined type) and a second user-defined type. Such a modification would allow the teachings of Kriens and Iwata to provide query time is shortened (see Iwata col. 3, line 50).

As per claim 2, Kriens discloses, "wherein said second user-defined type is a subtype of said at least one user-defined type" (see col. 4, lines 39-41), and table 1, and column 4, lines 60-64.

As per claim 3, Kriens discloses, "wherein said second user-defined type is a supertype of said at least one user-defined type" (see col. 4, lines 39-41), and table 1, and column 4, lines 60-64.

As per claim 6, Kriens discloses, "wherein said at least one user-defined type is defined by a statement in a programming language from among the following group of programming languages: C, C++, and C# ("C-sharp")" (see col. 16, lines 57-64).

As per claim 7, Kriens discloses, "wherein said at least one user-defined type is defined by a visual basic statement" (see col. 4, lines 39-41).

As per claims 8-9, 18-19, 28 and 29, in addition to claim 1, Kriens further discloses the claimed subject matter, except the claimed said inheritance relationship between said at least one user-defined type and said second user-defined type. However, Iwata discloses a sub-data type may be a user-defined type to designate a procedure regarding to specify relationships of inheritance between data type (see Iwata col. 7, lines 32-39). It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the combined teachings of Kriens and Iwata with said inheritance relationship between said at least one user-defined type and said second user-defined type. Such a modification would allow the teachings of Kriens and Iwata to provide query time is shortened (see Iwata col. 3, line 50).

As per claims 10, 20 and 30, Kriens discloses, "a subsystem for compiling a type into an assembly" (see col. 4, lines 18-38);
"a subsystem for registering said assembly with said database" (see col. 5, lines 16-38);
"a subsystem for registering said type of said assembly with said database" (see col. 8, lines 30-41); and
"a subsystem for using said type" (see col. 4, lines 60-64).

As per claim 11, Kriens discloses, "a method for providing, in a database, an extensible type system for at least one user-defined type" (see col. 20, lines 52-56), said method comprising: "storing information for describing the structure of said at least one user-defined type in said at least one user-defined type" (see col. 15, lines 35-38). Kriens fails to explicitly disclose storing information for describing an inheritance relationship between itself (said at least one user-defined type) and a second user-defined type. However, Iwata discloses a sub-data type may be a user-defined type to designate a procedure regarding to specify relationships of inheritance between data type (see Iwata col. 7, lines 32-39). It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the combined teachings of Kriens and Iwata with storing information for describing an inheritance relationship between itself (said at least one user-defined type) and a second user-defined type. Such a modification would allow the teachings of Kriens and Iwata to provide query time is shortened (see Iwata col. 3, line 50).

As per claims 12 and 22, Kriens further discloses, "creating said second user-defined type is a subtype of said at least one user-defined type" (see col. 4, lines 39-41), and table 1, and column 4, lines 60-64.

As per claims 13 and 23, Kriens further discloses, "creating said at least one user-defined type that is a subtype of said second user-defined type" (see col. 4, lines 39-41), and table 1, and column 4, lines 60-64.

As per claims 16 and 26, Kriens further discloses, "defining said at least one user-defined type is defined by a statement in a programming language from among the following group of programming languages: C, C++, and C# ("C-sharp")" (see col. 16, lines 57-64).

As per claims 17 and 27, Kriens further discloses, "defining said at least one user-defined type is defined by a visual basic statement" (see col. 4, lines 39-41).

Claims 4-5, 14-15, 24 and 25 lack an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over U.S Patent No. 5,864,862 issued to Kriens et al., ("hereinafter Kriens") and in view of U.S Patent No. 6,564,205 issued to Iwata et al., ("hereinafter Iwata") as applied to claims 1-3, 6-13, 16-23 and 26-30 above, and further in view of U.S Patent No. 5,696,961 issued to Briscoe et al., ("hereinafter Briscoe").

As per claims 4-5, 14-15, 24 and 25, Kriens discloses the claimed subject matter, except the claimed Sequential Query Language (SQL) statement. However, Briscoe discloses the claimed Sequential Query Language (SQL) queries (see Briscoe col. 6, lines 46-61). It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the combined teachings of Kriens, Iwata and Briscoe with Sequential Query Language (SQL) statement. Such a modification would allow the teachings of Kriens, Iwata and Briscoe to provide database access services to multiples applications programs (see Briscoe col. 1, lines 10-11).

Claims 1-30 meet the criteria set out in PCT Article 33(4), and thus have industrial applicability because the subject matter claimed can be made or used in industry.

NOTES TO FORM PCT/ISA/220

These Notes are intended to give the basic instructions concerning the filing of amendments under Article 19. The Notes are based on the requirements of the Patent Cooperation Treaty, the Regulations and the Administrative Instructions under that Treaty. In case of discrepancy between these Notes and those requirements, the latter are applicable. For more detailed information, see also the PCT Applicant's Guide, a publication of WIPO.

In these Notes, "Article," "Rule" and "Section" refer to the provisions of the PCT, the PCT Regulations and the PCT Administrative Instructions, respectively.

INSTRUCTIONS CONCERNING AMENDMENTS UNDER ARTICLE 19

The applicant has, after having received the international search report and the written opinion of the International Searching Authority, one opportunity to amend the claims of the international application. It should however be emphasized that, since all parts of the international application (claims, description and drawings) may be amended during the international preliminary examination procedure, there is usually no need to file amendments of the claims under Article 19 except where, e.g. the applicant wants the latter to be published for the purposes of provisional protection or has another reason for amending the claims before international publication. Furthermore, it should be emphasized that provisional protection is available in some States only (see PCT Applicant's Guide, Volume I/A, Annexes B1 and B2).

The attention of the applicant is drawn to the fact that amendments to the claims under Article 19 are not allowed where the International Searching Authority has declared, under Article 17(2), that no international search report would be established (see PCT Applicant's Guide, Volume I/A, paragraph 296).

What parts of the international application may be amended ?

Under Article 19, only the claims may be amended.

During the international phase, the claims may also be amended (or further amended) under Article 34 before the International Preliminary Examining Authority. The description and drawings may only be amended under Article 34 before the International Preliminary Examining Authority.

Upon entry into the national phase, all parts of the international application may be amended under Article 28 or, where applicable, Article 41.

When ? Within 2 months from the date of transmittal of the international search report or 16 months from the priority date, whichever time limit expires later. It should be noted, however, that the amendments will be considered as having been received on time if they are received by the International Bureau after the expiration of the applicable time limit but before the completion of the technical preparations for international publication (Rule 46.1).

Where not to file the amendments ?

The amendments may only be filed with the International Bureau and not with the receiving Office or the International Searching Authority (Rule 46.2).

Where a demand for international preliminary examination has been/is filed, see below.

How ? Either by cancelling one or more entire claims, by adding one or more new claims or by amending the text of one or more of the claims as filed.

A replacement sheet must be submitted for each sheet of the claims which, on account of an amendment or amendments, differs from the sheet originally filed.

All the claims appearing on a replacement sheet must be numbered in Arabic numerals. Where a claim is cancelled, no renumbering of the other claims is required. In all cases where claims are renumbered, they must be renumbered consecutively (Section 205(b)).

The amendments must be made in the language in which the international application is to be published.

What documents must/may accompany the amendments ?

Letter (Section 205(b)):

The amendments must be submitted with a letter.
